BLAZE AT BELFAST.

A Most Serious Conflagration.
The American House, a Livery Stable and Five Stores Burned.

Two Men Perish in the Flaming.
Twenty Horses Also Burned.
Loss Estimated at $50,000.

BELFAST, July 12. The great conflagration which visited this city this morning, resulting in the death of two persons and twenty horses, and the destruction of property of an estimated value of about $50,000. The fire broke out shortly after one o'clock in the stable of the Belfast Livery Co., on High street, and before assistance could arrive the burning fire was well established in the stable.

The flames next communicated with the block, at the corner of Main and High streets, known as the Telegraph building, which was entirely destroyed. The building was occupied in the basement by Field & Carter's fish market. The first story was occupied by W. M. Priest, tailor; Fred H. Francis, boot and shoe; and L. D. Fogg, confectioner. The second floor was occupied by Nathaniel Delano, barber; Moses Rich, cobbler; F. A. Carle, collector, and W. C. Tuttle, organist.

Mr. Tuttle occupied the third floor for a photography gallery. The building was owned by the late Mrs. J. H. Francis, who was fully covered. The American House, owned by H. N. Luntz, and occupied by Landlord William Weeks, the leading hotel in the city, next communicated to the element. The guest-escapes. Landlord Weeks saved the transportation of his furniture, which was piled up in a corner. House square. The house was a custom. Insured but Mr. Weeks commented. The wooden carriage was owned by N. Marshfield and occupied by Brian W. Purdy & Co., who were the company's sales office.

The brick building west of the American House, owned by Lewis and Joseph Ryan, was completely gutted, but the walls are standing. The larger part of Ryan's stock was saved. The flames crossed High street, gaining the roof of William's store. The flames of the New England House and the Mission Temple. The flames were checked in that direction. The large grocery store of A. J. Brown & Co., opposite the American House, was saved by the use of canvas and a stubborn fight by the firemen. All the goods in the front of this store and all the glass in the High street front of Mission Temple was broken by the explosion.

But House's store caught fire. The fire from the street corner would have been destroyed. The firemen worked with great heroism and by six o'clock the fire was entirely extinguished. The extent of the damage was the death of two persons and twenty horses, and the destruction of property of an estimated value of about $50,000.

Agricultural.

All the summer, in connection with every operation, keep in mind the paramount object—the improvement of the farm.

Plowing, sowing, and reaping are the three main operations of the farmer, and the success of each depends upon the quality of the soil.

A New Hampshire farmer claims that by allowing his soil to rest in its original state he has gradually overcome many of the evils of the soil.

Keep the flies out of the stable, even if it costs a little money to do so. The cost of disease will be much greater than the cost of prevention.

The watering troughs are liable to get full of filth and rubbish, and will need attention every day. The water for horses should be as pure as can be secured.

Bedding, according to Prof. Knapp, is a rather gross thing, but it must be used to keep the horse clean and healthy.

Midsummer, whenever the farmer can do it, is the best time to remove sprouts from apple trees.

The removal of sprouts from apple trees is a very important operation, and should be done carefully.

In cultivating corn the land should be thrown in ridges as little as possible. The ridges should be made in the middle of the space between the rows.

The ridges should be made in the middle of the space between the rows, and the corn should be sown in the furrows.

When the corn is sown in the furrows, it should be covered with a thin layer of soil.

All experienced strawberry growers agree with John J. Thomas that the formation of runners is a great evil.

The runner is a great evil, and should be removed as soon as it appears.
